Silo Season 3 has arrived, bringing Apple TV's acclaimed dystopian sci-fi drama into its penultimate chapter. Starring and executive produced by Rebecca Ferguson, the show continues to be one of the most talked-about sci-fi series on television, and this new season finally starts answering the question the show has circled since its first episode: how did humanity end up living underground?

Silo Season 3 Release Date

Silo Season 3 premiered on Friday, July 3, 2026, at 12:00 AM PT / 3:00 AM ET, with the first episode dropping on Apple TV. Like the previous two seasons, the ten-episode season is being released weekly rather than all at once, with new episodes arriving every Friday through the season finale on September 4, 2026.

The premiere date was confirmed by Apple TV on April 21, 2026, roughly two and a half months ahead of release, alongside the season's first teaser trailer.

Silo Season 3 Plot: What to Expect

Season 2 ended with Juliette Nichols (Rebecca Ferguson) and Bernard Holland (Tim Robbins) trapped in an airlock engulfed in flames after uncovering the truth about a hidden pipeline, while a closing flashback hinted at a connection stretching back 352 years. Silo Season 3 picks up that thread directly.

In the present timeline, Juliette survives her forced “cleaning” but returns with memory loss as the silo grapples with the aftermath of rebellion and a dangerous new threat. Running in parallel, a second timeline set in the “Before Times” follows journalist Helen Drew and Congressman Daniel Keene as they uncover a conspiracy tied to the origins of the silos themselves.

This split-timeline structure lets the show begin adapting Shift, the prequel novel in Hugh Howey's trilogy, finally filling in the origin story the series has teased since its pilot episode.

Silo Season 3 Cast

Rebecca Ferguson returns as Juliette Nichols, the engineer-turned-reluctant-hero at the center of the series, alongside a large returning ensemble including Common, Harriet Walter, Chinaza Uche, Avi Nash, Alexandria Riley, Shane McRae, Remmie Milner, Rick Gomez, Billy Postlethwaite, Clare Perkins, and Steve Zahn.

Season 3 also expands the cast significantly to support its new “Before Times” storyline. Jessica Henwick and Ashley Zukerman — who first appeared in the Season 2 finale — join as series regulars, playing journalist Helen Drew and Congressman Daniel Keene respectively. They're joined by Laura Innes, Jessica Brown Findlay, Morven Christie, Reed Birney, and Matt Craven, with Colin Hanks set to recur as a chilling billionaire industrialist.

Actor	Character
Rebecca Ferguson	Juliette Nichols
Common	Robert Sims
Tim Robbins	Bernard Holland
Jessica Henwick	Helen Drew (new, Before Times)
Ashley Zukerman	Congressman Daniel Keene (new, Before Times)
Colin Hanks	Recurring — industrialist character
Steve Zahn	Returning cast

Where to Watch Silo Season 3

Silo Season 3 is streaming exclusively on Apple TV and cannot be watched on any other platform. A basic Apple TV subscription costs $12.99 per month, or $99.00 billed annually, with a 7-day free trial available for new subscribers. Viewers can also catch up on the complete first and second seasons on Apple TV before diving into the new season.

Is Silo Ending After Season 3?

Not quite. Apple TV renewed Silo for both a third and a fourth season back in December 2024, with the fourth season confirmed as the series' final chapter. Season 3 adapts Shift, the second book in Hugh Howey's trilogy, while Season 4 will conclude the story with Dust, the final novel. Showrunner Graham Yost has stated the creative team has no plans to stretch the story beyond what's covered in Howey's books.

Critical Reception

Silo Season 3 has been met with strong early reviews. On Rotten Tomatoes, the season holds a 100% approval rating based on early critic reviews, with critics praising its character work and tighter narrative structure compared to previous seasons, while Metacritic reports a score in the high 70s, indicating generally favorable reviews overall.
